

1. Buy California Friendly plants. They'll last longer and need less care than thirsty annuals.
2. Start small. Pick a section of your garden and make it California Friendly.
3. Go to bewaterwise.com. Find information about other plants that can thrive in your garden.

Save water inside as well as out.

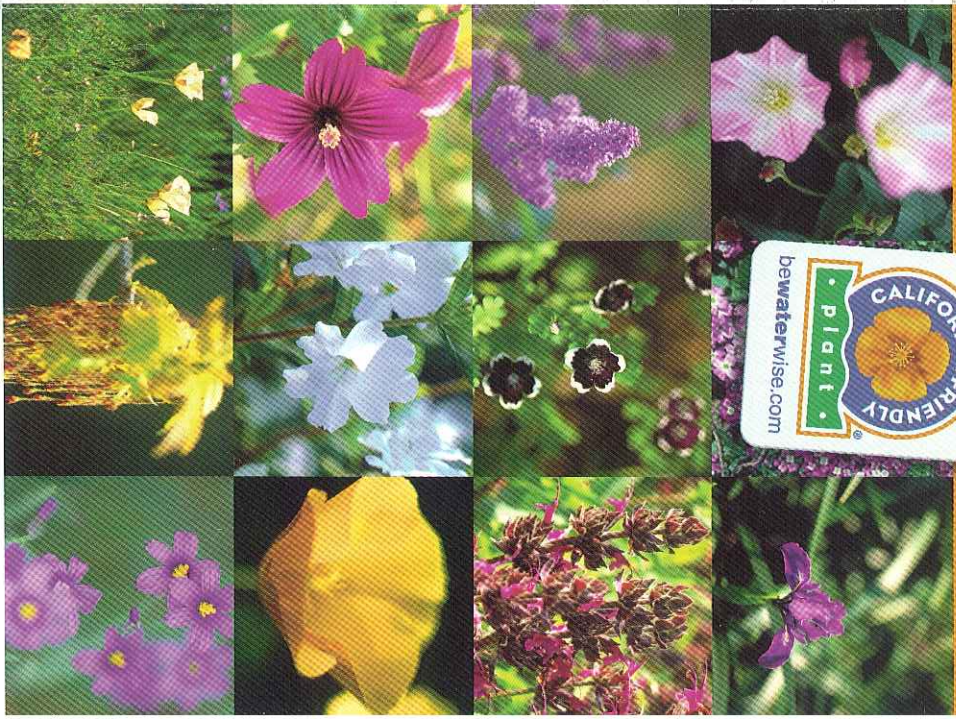

Being California Friendly® involves more than just plants. It also applies inside your house, with rebates on devices like high-efficiency clothes washers, dual-flush toilets or weather-sensing smart controllers for your sprinklers. Look for the complete list of rebate items at bewaterwise.com.

Look for the tag at participating retailers near you or go to our Web site for a full list.

bewaterwise.com
 Metropolitan Water District of Southern California
 FAMILY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WATER AGENCIES

Planting a California Friendly® garden in three easy steps.

California Friendly® water-wise landscaping.
And you thought your choices were rocks, stones and gravel.

California Friendly plants thrive in our mild winters and warm, dry summers. They're durable and beautiful without needing constant watering.

Best of all, there are hundreds of California Friendly plants to choose from. They're more eye-catching and more environmentally friendly than you may have imagined. Not only are they less thirsty, they also use less fertilizer and require less care than most annuals and perennials.

bewaterwise.com

If you weren't born with a green thumb, you can still learn how to be a California Friendly gardener at bewaterwise.com. There you'll find a complete list of California Friendly plants, plus a sprinkler index, and even online landscaping courses. Find out how to plant a garden that uses less water, whether it's just a few plants or the whole yard.

