Keith,

After reviewing the MSDS for both Soak 140 and Electro 240-M, both materials have corrosive properties. I know the containers are located under cover and in secondary containment, however this area always has materials spilled on the ground. Please improve the spill prevention and clean up procedures around this area.

Please let me know if you have any questions,

Thank you,

Lorianah

Mr. Pettus,

This link should take you to the correct website.

http://www.waterboards.ca.gov/water_issues/programs/stormwater/indstpermits.shtml

I would recommend reviewing the documents, as it will directly affect Air Industries storm water program when this new permit is adopted. Legally, when there are new laws/regulations proposed there has to be a public comment period. I would imagine there will be an additional round of draft and comment period after this one and then the new requirements will be adopted. I project it will take affect in 2 years or so.

Also, I would recommend signing up through the States notification system, so you can be notified when new regulations or programs occur. There is a category for "Storm Water Industrial Permitting Issues" that will notify you when the State is planning on doing anything with the Industrial Storm Water Program. And maybe there are other topics listed that you can sign up for notification whenever something is happening at the State level.

http://www.waterboards.ca.gov/resources/email_subscriptions/swrcb_subscribe.shtml

Finally, can you please send me the MSDS for the Soak 40 and Electro 240-M?

Please contact me with any questions you may have,

Thanks,

Loriana Hornik
